

Wolf Martini plays guitar in a groovy way that combines a mainstream jazz-feel like Kenny Burrell and Wes Montgomery with a blend of funky Nile Rodgers (ChiC) and smooth George Benson-lines. Wolf has developed his own style that recognizes his passion for groove, Latin, jazz and pop.

With Denise Jannah he played at the North Sea Jazz Festival, Baku Jazz Festival, Azerbijdjan and Joy of Jazz Festival, in South Africa among others; they also toured in Indonesia and South Africa. With the duo 'Hartog and Martini' he performed on radio and TV and was support act for Tuck and Patti in Holland and Germany.

Wolf Martini graduated from the Hilversum Conservatory / Amsterdam University of the Arts. "Doing the study was great but I learned the most through playing concerts with artists like Jhelisa Anderson/USA and 'the dutch grand lady of swing' Rita Reys (who recorded with Johnny Griffin and Kenny Clarke) and touring with soul revue 'Big, Black & Beautiful' and pop soul singer Ruth Jacott." He can be heard on CDs by Mathilde Santing, Deborah J. Carter and Dana Winner with the Metropole Orkest, among others. His performances in Pop music range from Candy Dulfer to George Baker and Edsilia Rombley.
